Academic conventions followed with appropriate referencing. Information is well-structured and opinions justified by evidence. Excellent language use.

Examiner feedback to candidate:

It is a strong portfolio approached in a professional way. Academic conventions were consistently followed with appropriate referencing to published work. Excellent use of the language. The portfolio shows evidence of all the learning outcomes which proves that the candidate understood all the concepts and principles underlying the teaching and learning process. Relevant and useful examples drawn from own teaching practice are informed by a wide range of sources. All opinions given are also justified and backed up by evidence. In order to improve this submission, the candidate should:

- Ensure future submissions are within the word limit set in the syllabus (over the word count in some parts of the portfolio e.g in evidence of learning of unit 1 and in evidence of reflection of unit 3)
- Further analysis about the impact of teaching practice on the students' learning should be required in the evidence of reflection of unit 3.

Overall, this is an excellent submission and the candidate would benefit significantly by engaging with Module 2 of the PDQ Diploma in Teaching and Learning.

Examiner feedback to candidate:

This is a very strong portfolio that clearly evidences sound engagement with module materials, the support of a strong mentor and well-developed analysis of theories, concepts and ideas.

The candidate shows a thorough understanding of the key theories of teaching and learning that is willing to apply to own practice learning from experience.

The work evidences many other strong features:

- Lessons are planned in a coherent way and they have well-defined links to previous learning objectives. There is a focus on making the planning inclusive.
- Feedback from mentor and candidate's own reflection are used to evaluate lessons and inform future practice (e.g. in the E of L of unit 1, in the E of R of unit 2).
- The use of active learning strategies to motivate and engage very young learners.

The candidate would benefit significantly by engaging with Module 2 of the PDQ Diploma in Teaching and Learning.

Pass	Professional approach to presentation of work. Academic conventions mostly followed, with attempt to reference appropriately. However, opinions may be expressed at times without evidential or other accepted support.

Examiner feedback to candidate:

The portfolio was approached professionally. It was well-structured and mostly followed academic conventions. All the learning outcomes were covered and evidenced throughout. It shows that the candidate understood all the concepts and principles underlying teaching and learning and was able to apply them to own practice learning from experience.

To be awarded a distinction grade it is important:

- All work must be correctly referenced.
- Use of a wider range of information sources would have enhanced Unit 1.
- The level of discussion could be improved by more analysis and evaluation of the impact of own teaching on the learning practice in the evidence of reflection of Unit 1.

However, the portfolio showed evidence of a development of ideas and ended with a sound reflection of the module impact on plans for future practice. Therefore, Module 2 of the PDQ Diploma in Teaching and Learning would be a beneficial next step for this candidate.
